Alterwards Inguated with them the fundamental Doctrines of the Christian Briligionwhich they heard when they were prepared for the holy Babtism and after Brayer I dismission them to their houses and defined them to return in the morning early before they went abroad to. their busines ... Accordingly this morning all the Christians came together with a heathers. He prayed and repeated the Catechism, and afterniards every one went to his Work, and I went to Maliapudti for to visite one of our Arighans, Buttiren and at his House I had a discourse with sword Heathers. after g a clock Inturned to bull pam and visited everyone of the Christians as his house, and enquired for their circumstances. In the Afternoon at 2 a cloak we left Bulliaray par and or rived in the looning to thinnamanaik paliand have ing by the way in several places defeoursed with heathers. The Weaver with whom I baged here before would now not receive me because the other inhabitants had reproched him for it, and called him a Kulam pundawen which fignifies as much as one who enters into another fat, and they furnished him that he would be a direction However ofter some Discourse with him upon this matter he allowed me aplace as before ... Before his house we spoke to some Heathers who ga= thered there about the Doctrine of sin and the Blotting out of the same - 9 This morning early after having made our Bray ur return home and having spoke with several heathers we came at a boah to Sadriay pam and arrived this offernon again in fuddalore. By my discourfes with the heathers I always endeavoured to lead them to the Septemony of this Conficience and so by degrees shined them the Dive = nity & Excellency of the Christian Inchines, with the absolute of necessary Obligation to embrace the Jame. And when I had Doportunity I have also showed them what a happy influence the Christian beligion as in the common wealth, which as made them very attent to take the other parts of the Discourse to heart, as they full well know how heavy the burdens of the Fyramical.
